Exposure This refers to the overall brightness or darkness of your image A properly exposed image captures details in both highlights bright areas and shadows dark areas without 2 clipping loss of information

Contrast This describes the difference between light and dark areas in your image Increasing contrast makes highlights brighter and shadows darker creating a dramatic look Decreasing contrast softens the image and creates a more subtle feel

Color Temperature Measured in Kelvin K color temperature refers to the warmth or coolness of light Warm colors like reds and oranges have a lower Kelvin temperature while cool colors like blues and greens have a higher temperature

Saturation This controls the intensity of colors in your image Increasing saturation makes colors more vivid and punchy while decreasing it creates a more muted desaturated look

Hue This refers to the actual color itself red blue green and so on Adjusting hue shifts the overall color

Exposure Adjust the exposure slider to brighten or darken your image overall Be careful not to overexpose or underexpose as this can lead to loss of detail

Contrast The contrast slider controls the difference between light and dark areas Experiment to find a level that enhances your images detail and visual impact
