for almost nine decades since their mass resettlement to the levant in the wake of the genocide and first world war the armenian communities of lebanon and syria appear to have successfully maintained a distinct identity as an ethno culturally diverse group in spite of representing a small non arab and christian minority within a very different mostly arab and muslim environment the author shows that while in lebanon the state has facilitated the development of an extensive and effective system of armenian ethno cultural preservation in syria the emergence of centralizing authoritarian regimes in the 1950s and 1960s has severely damaged the autonomy and cultural diversity of the armenian community since 1970 the coming to power of the asad family has contributed to a partial recovery of armenian ethno cultural diversity as the community seems to have developed some form of tacit arrangement with the regime in lebanon on the other hand the armenian community suffered the consequences of the recurrent breakdown of the consociational arrangement that regulates public life in both cases the survival of armenian cultural distinctiveness seems to be connected rather incidentally with the continuing search for legitimacy of the state the arab uprisings have put lebanon under increased strain while the revolutions in tunisia and egypt caused limited reverberations the war in syria echoed in the fine tuned political and confessional balance of lebanon over one million refugees equal to one quarter of lebanon s population have moved in from syria the country s economy and its already weak public infrastructure have been impacted heavily hizbullah s engagement in syria has posed questions about lebanon s disassociation policy terrorist attacks by isil and the growing risk of radicalization across the confessional spectrum have left the country at unease however lebanon s political elites have vowed to shield the country from regional turbulences lebanon recently saw a series of demonstrations because of the inability of the government to manage the garbage crisis but it has been far from witnessing a large scale citizen uprising similar to the 2005 cedar revolution or the revolts next door this book provides a comprehensive overview of the current situation in lebanon and a detailed assessment of the difficulties which the country is currently facing aiming to contribute to the reader s greater understanding of lebanese government and politics this book provides a comprehensive examination of the origin development and institutionalization of sectarian consociationalism in lebanon a recurrent proposition advanced in this book is that lebanese sectarian consociationalism has been both a cure and a curse in the formulation of political settlements and institution building on the one hand and in contrast to many surrounding arab regimes consociational arrangements have provided the country with a relative democratic political life a limited government with a strong confessional division of power and a built in checks and balance mechanism prevented the emergence of dictatorship or monarchy on the other hand a chronic weak state has complicated efforts for nation building in favour of sectarian fragmentation external interventions and strong polarization that periodically brought the country to the verge of total collapse and civil war while examining lebanese sectarian politics of conflict and concession during different historic junctures many revelations are made that underlie the role of domestic and international forces shaping the country s future presenting an implicit description of the power and functions of the various branches of government within the context of sectarian consociationalism this book is an important introductory text for students of lebanese politics and middle eastern politics more broadly sabrina bensen sheds light on political cults of martyrs in lebanon and reconsiders the context of their emergence development and distinct characteristics since 1920 she examines how the honouring of martyrs became an established practice in lebanese politics and is crucial to grasp the logic of violence and conflict drawing on the case of the amal movement the author analyses central narratives to the group s discourse and practices concerning martyrdom to show how identity construction and strategies of legitimizing power are intertwined moreover the book provides insides into political competition strategies especially in regards to the two major shi'ite political actors amal and hizbullah and takes a new look on martyrdom by

for the past three decades scientists and policymakers in the global south have practiced science diplomacy under neocolonial conditions recent crises including the covid 19 pandemic and russia s invasion of ukraine have further complicated science diplomacy on public health revealing the marginalisation of actors in the global south yet existing models practices and modes of engagement in the global south may subvert and strategically navigate these neocolonial conditions how can these models be collated in a dynamic and flexible way such that knowledge gained through new experiences is used iteratively across contexts how can scientists increase multilateral interdisciplinary and transversal partnerships while navigating complex governmental and international structures for this special issue we call for papers that demonstrate innovative and flexible models for science diplomacy with a focus on public health and health promotion policies we aim to collect evidence across various aspects of public health research which demonstrates the practical role of science diplomacy in the global south as well as the structural challenges faced on the ground while south america and asia have received scholarly attention especially in incorporating decolonial thinking and heritage diplomacy less has been studied in the middle east and africa moreover less has been done in framing science diplomacy in terms of neocolonialism in order for its root structure to be constructively challenged areas to be covered may include but are not limited to building partnerships among stakeholders across the global south to ensure practical implementation of public health research modes by which scientific research is grounded in local culture and context the role of stakeholders in furthering health promotion including governments the un ngos academia and the private sector case studies which balance the participation of researchers from the global south with the representation of gender ethnicity and disability positioning researchers as protagonists irrespective of geographies and state hierarchies in the international system turning governments financial power in research into a force for the good rather than a tool of neocolonialism seeking to explain lebanon s behavior in the international arena during the 2006 war between hezbollah and israel this book offers a critique of both systemic and sub state factors in determining foreign policy decisions the making of lebanese foreign policy illustrates how systemic theories are limited in terms of explaining foreign policy decisions because they largely ignore the role of internal or sub state factors within lebanon foreign policy is split between the interests of different internal lebanese groups working in alliance with external actors the competing interests of these internal groups compromise the cohesion of the lebanese state and its capacity to promote its own interests above those of the different internal groups the example of lebanon during the 2006 war thus demonstrates the importance of these sub state factors in influencing state behaviour on an international level arguing that a more pluralistic approach is necessary in order to understand the conditions that affect the foreign policy making of the lebanese state this book fills an important gap in the literature on the topic and will be of interest to students of international relations middle east studies and islamic studies amongst others
