the rivalry for trade in tea and textiles between the english and dutch east india companies is very much a global history this trade is strongly connected to emblematic events such as the opening of western trade with china the boston tea party the establishment of british empire in bengal and the industrial revolution in a history of global consumption 1500 1800 ina baghdiantz mccabe examines the history of consumption throughout the early modern period using a combination of chronological and thematic discussion taking a comprehensive and wide reaching view of a subject that has long been on the historical agenda the title explores the topic from the rise of the collector in renaissance europe to the birth of consumption as a political tool in the eighteenth century beginning with an overview of the history of consumption and the major theorists such as bourdieu elias and barthes who have shaped its development as a field baghdiantz mccabe approaches the subject through a clear chronological framework supplemented by illustrations in every chapter and ranging in scope from an analysis of the success of american commodities such as tobacco sugar and chocolate in europe and asia to a discussion of the dutch tulip mania a history of global consumption 1500 1800 is the perfect guide for all students interested in the social cultural and economic history of the early modern period this fourth volume explores the intersections and transformations of empire in the late 17th and 18th centuries an age of enlightenment understood here both as a product of these new forces and as a matrix shaping their emergence and development as innovative ideas transformed warfare commerce and agriculture the great universal empires confronted new capitalist forces that both splintered and reinforced imperial relations across the globe dutch english and french trading companies backed by state power increasingly overtook the imperial ascendancy of spain and portugal while ottoman and russian territorial expansion slowed or halted commodities and capital circulated in new ways along with people and ideas yet that mobility was hardly a free exchange the new forces found their first great expression in the global trade in human labour that transformed communities environments and social relations in europe africa and the americas above all a cultural history of western empires in the age of enlightenment reveals the profound imprint left by the atlantic slave trade on global conceptions of race sexuality and power and the burgeoning imperial rivalry resentment and resistance that contributed to the explosion of revolutionary change at the end of the 18th century
